

CHILD'S SAFETY ON SCHOOL PLAYGROUNDS

What to Know About Your Child's Safety on School Playgrounds

Playgrounds should be safe spaces where children can enjoy exercise and fun. But no matter the good intentions, accidents happen, and sometimes with serious consequences.

If your child has been injured on a school playground in Oklahoma, understanding your rights is crucial to securing the necessary compensation for their medical expenses and more. Follow the link below to learn what every parent should know about this scary but common situation.

Learn More

Liability and Your Rights in Playground Injury Claims

Playground injuries can range from minor scrapes to serious incidents requiring expensive medical treatment. If you're interested in pursuing such a case, you should know:

- The School Must Have Been Negligent: Despite sovereign immunity, Oklahoma parents can sue schools for injuries, but only if negligence can be proven.
- You Must Prove Negligence: Success in these claims often hinges on demonstrating that the injury was foreseeable and preventable, such as from inadequate supervision or faulty equipment.
- The Injury Must Have Occurred During School Hours: For a negligence claim against the school to stick, the injury must have happened while the child had permission to be on the playground and was under supervision.

Reach out to us today if your child was harmed due to someone else's negligence, be it on the playground, on the road, at the store, or anywhere else. We're here to help you!

Featured Posts

Can Ice Skating Rinks Be Held Liable for Injuries in Oklahoma?

Read More

Can I Sue if I Suffered an Injury at a Fair or Festival?

Read More

What Are Oklahoma City's Window Tint Laws?

Read More

844-243-4183

Contact Us

View Online | Unsubscribe